We appreciate everyone's cooperation with this and look forward to not only a Ride to Remember, but an Event to Remember.

REMEMBER THE PAST.....TRANSFORM THE FUTURE

We have been riding for 10 years to support the teaching of today's youth to sustain the defining doctrine of all free men and woman around the world; that people of all races and religions must be treated equally and without prejudice.

From 1933 when Dachau was set up to 1945 when Hitler was defeated, six million men, women and children of the Jewish faith, along with millions of other innocent people, were murdered in the worst genocide in the history of humankind.

The Holocaust mandates that people of goodwill today must remember the horrors of the past and oppose anti-Semitism, racism and bigotry wherever it surfaces.

The goal of the JMA is to fund Holocaust education at local Community Centers, Schools, Museums, Universities and Colleges throughout the world.

With everyone's support, we can make a difference in the lives of the world's future leaders by teaching the lessons of the Holocaust for the benefit of humanity.

The JMA and its supporters have undertaken the mission to work for a future where people of all backgrounds may enjoy a life of equality. This is the task of the Ride to Remember and we invite you to join us in Oswego, N.Y. to remember our past and this time we can also celebrate the life saved.

“HOW WONDERFUL IT IS THAT NOBODY NEED WAIT A SINGLE MOMENT BEFORE STARTING TO IMPROVE THE WORLD.”

Anne Frank

WHY OSWEGO? WHAT IS SAFE HAVEN MUSEUM AND EDUCATION CENTER?

From all that was learned in school, the title of a book by Saul Friedman summed it up nicely: No Haven for the Oppressed: United States Policy Toward Jewish Refugees, 1938-1945. However, there is a little known, but very significant event occurred during this time period that is NOT taught in the schools, it is just another example of the familiar adage, “too little, too late”, and thus, in some ways, an embarrassment. However, The Safe Haven Museum and Education Center chronicles this unique event in history, and is an excellent teaching resource that offers us the opportunity to learn from it.

In 1944, with the tide of the war turning with the Allies’, President Franklin Roosevelt made a symbolic gesture. His Secretary of the Interior, Harold Ickes, sent Special Assistant Ruth Gruber to Italy to bring back nearly 1,000 war refugees to America. The refugees, men, women and children (mostly Jewish), had been specially selected for the trip. Said Gruber, “The government officials making the selection chose families and survivors with skills that could help run a camp in America. Their first priority was refugees who had been in concentration camps and escaped”, as well as those that had helped in the Allied war effort and those that had lost relatives in the Holocaust.

Under Roosevelt’s plan, 982 refugees from eighteen different countries in war torn Europe were liberated from the persecutions of Nazism by being transported from Italy to what was officially called an emergency shelter but was actually an “internment camp” (and surrounded by barbed wire fences) at Fort Ontario, NY. President Roosevelt circumvented the rigid immigration quotas by identifying these refugees as his “guests,” but that status gave them no legal standing. In fact his plan required their return to Europe once conditions permitted their repatriation, and the refugees had to sign a document agreeing to this condition.

It took the group two weeks to cross the ocean, fighting limited space conditions, seasickness, and extreme heat. But spirits lifted as the ship pulled into New York harbor, and cheers greeted the sight of the Statue of Liberty. Said refugee Ivo Lederer, “If you’re coming from war-time, war-damaged Europe, to see this enormous sight, lower Manhattan and the Statue of Liberty – I don’t think there was a dry eye on deck.”

After that symbol of freedom, however, there were other symbols awaiting them. A train, reminder of the ones bound for Auschwitz and Bergen-Belsen, carried the refugees north to their new home, a decommissioned military base at Fort Ontario. Once there, barbed wire fences and military personnel greeted them. The camp was run by Joseph Smart, who had previously worked at a Japanese internment camp on the West Coast. Their stay at the shelter was to become an emotional event for the community of Oswego and a political conundrum for the nation.

Because of their undefined immigrant status, the refugees were not permitted to leave Fort Ontario, even to work or to visit family members already settled in the United States. They struggled to create a community within the camp, but the close quarters and their uncertain futures made for tense relations. Fortunately, the people of Oswego were exceptionally welcoming to these “guests”. Children were soon permitted to attend Oswego schools. Men helped with the upkeep and daily running of the camp. They also learned a few skills such as woodworking. The women learned skills such as hairdressing and sewing, to make needed items for the home. Everyone was very eager to learn English and attended the classes held in the fort. In time, the refugees were allowed daily access into the city of Oswego but no further.

Advocates for the refugees continually lobbied Congress and the President to allow them to stay in America. Finally, after eighteen months in the camp, while Congress was on Christmas break, President Harry Truman signed an executive order allowing the refugees to remain in the country under existing immigration quotas. In order to gain their citizenship the refugees had to leave the country and return. In January and February of 1946, they went in busloads to the Rainbow Bridge near Niagara Falls, crossed into Canada to receive their immigration visas, and then returned to the United States.

Although the shelter closed in February 1946, the lives saved and stories retold serve as an example of human struggle and accomplishment in the face of adversity.

Thus, the Safe Haven Museum and Education Center, a memorial to suffering and the triumph of the human spirit, was created in the old Administration Building at the refugee shelter and dedicated on October 6, 2002. It does NOT receive any federal or state funding and desperately needs our help to continue its mission to preserve and re-tell this unique and largely unknown story. To learn more visit: <http://www.safehavenmuseum.com/>.

2014 is the 70th anniversary of Safe Haven and along with the JMA, Safe Haven is hosting a weekend of survivors and their families to celebrate the opportunity they had to escape the horrors of the Holocaust. There will be approximately 350 refugees and families to help make this weekend one to NEVER FORGET.

Please be Generous and Donate:

Safe Haven Museum and Education Center is dedicated to telling the unique story of America's only refugee camp. The JMA, through the R2R, dedicates its efforts to bring attention and help support organizations that review lessons of the Holocaust. It's a perfect match.

The R2R is a joyful event that celebrates life. We rev our engines for a greater purpose. Safe Haven Museum and Education Center needs our support. Many students in Middle School, High School, College and tourists visit Safe Haven each year. With our support Safe Haven can reach out to a greater number of people. With our help the experience can be enhanced. Visiting Safe Haven is inspiring; individuals leave with a sense that taking action when others are facing impossible circumstances benefits all involved and has the power to counteract horrific atrocities such as those committed during the Holocaust. How fortunate are we to be in a position to help out and pass on this message.

For your convenience the JMA has set up a fundraising site. Click on the link below to get started. Each individual can join their club team and fundraise as a group or on their own. It is easy to get started, just follow the directions on the site. Further instructions for fundraising will be sent to your club council reps. The link is: <http://www.stayclassy.org/oswego/events/2014-jewish-motorcyclists-alliance-ride-to-remember/e27739>.

SOME OSWEGO FACTS

The City of Oswego is located in New York State on the southeastern shore of Lake Ontario. It's beautiful waterfront offers a panoramic view of the lake and breathtaking sunsets.

The Oswego River, one of the only rivers in the country to run north, divides the city and provides a scenic venue for boaters and walkers along the East and West Linear Park, as well as from the window of our hotel! As the first U. S. port of call on the Great Lakes, Oswego is a leading international port.

Oswego County, including the city of Oswego, is rich in history. Fort Ontario played a prominent role in nine colonial and American wars including the French and Indian War, the American Revolutionary War and the War of 1812. The fort has been restored to its appearance in 1868-1869 and brings military life of that time alive for visitors.

Along with the Safe Haven Museum and Education Center, various other pieces of history are highlighted at the H. Lee White Marine Museum with collections of 400 years of Oswego County's maritime history. The Richard-Bates House Museum, owned and administered by the Oswego County Historical Society, is one of the most intact house museums in New York State, containing almost 90 percent of the original 19th century furnishings. The county is also home to several Underground Railroad sites.

The natural beauty of Oswego County provides a backdrop for a variety of activities. Miles of outdoor trails for hiking and biking, a world-class fishery for the avid angler and miles of open road to showcase all the area has to offer.

You will find wonderful specialty shops such as Lakeside Artisans, Rivers End Bookstore, Taste the World Gourmet Foods, Your House Your Home, Andrews Wine Cellar and Man in the Moon Candies, in the downtown area. Oswego also boasts fine river-front dining, delis, cafés, and traditional fare within a few blocks.

Oswego, population of 18,000 people, is centrally located in New York State, making it convenient to all markets in the Northeast United States and Canada. Equally distant from New York City and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania at approximately 300 miles, Oswego is 410 miles from Washington, DC. For our Canadian visitors, Toronto, Ontario and Montreal, Quebec are equally distant at about 240 miles.
